Bio - Photographer Gary Hamburg

Digital photographer Dr. Gary Hamburg (Ph.D. University of Oregon in Physical Education) photographs the stunning beauty and splendor that is found all around the Pacific Northwest where he lives – though his wanderlust takes him to many unique locations around the globe. However, Gary considers the rural landscapes in the Palouse of Eastern Washington his most enjoyable region to photograph, emphasizing the many barns, colors and textures that are present in that area.

"Photography has allowed me to see the world as a beautiful and exciting canvas. I capture and share images so that others may enjoy the beauty I experience in this region."

In 2003 digital photography piqued Gary's interest, and he initially studied under Scott Bourne at the Olympic Mountain School of Photography in Gig Harbor, Washington – additionally developing his skills through workshops and seminars presented by Art Wolfe, John Shaw, Rick Sammon, Darrell Gulin, Rick Holt and Scott Kelby.

Gary's photographs have been purchased by businesses, hospitals, colleges and universities, and private fine art collectors around the world.

Gary taught at Walla Walla College from 1972-2006, where he was a Department Chair of Health and Physical Education for 24 years, head basketball coach 15 years, and head coach for men's and women's golf for 6 years. Now retired from academia, Gary is devoting his full time to photography.
